UNIFORM REAL PROPERTY TRANSFER ON DEATH ACT

Prefatory Note

One of the main innovations in the property law of the twentieth century has been the development of asset-specific will substitutes for the transfer of property at death. By these mechanisms, an owner may designate beneficiaries to receive the property at the owner’s death without waiting for probate and without the beneficiary designation needing to comply with the witnessing requirements of wills. Examples of specific assets that today routinely pass outside of probate include the proceeds of life insurance policies and pension plans, securities registered in transfer on death (TOD) form, and funds held in pay on death (POD) bank accounts.

Today, nonprobate transfers are widely accepted. The trend has largely focused on assets that are personal property, such as the assets described in the preceding paragraph. However, long-standing uniform law speaks more broadly. Section 6-101 of the Uniform Probate Code (UPC) provides: “A provision for a nonprobate transfer on death in an insurance policy, contract of employment, bond, mortgage, promissory note, certificated or uncertificated security, account agreement, custodial agreement, deposit agreement, compensation plan, pension plan, individual retirement plan, employee benefit plan, trust, conveyance, deed of gift, marital property agreement, or other written instrument of a similar nature is nontestamentary” (emphasis supplied).

A small but emerging number of jurisdictions have implemented the principle of UPC §6-101 by enacting statutes providing an asset-specific mechanism for the nonprobate transfer of land. This is done by permitting owners of interests in real property to execute and record a transfer on death (TOD) deed. By this deed, the owner identifies the beneficiary or beneficiaries who will succeed to the property at the owner’s death. During the owner’s lifetime, the beneficiaries have no interest in the property, and the owner retains full power to transfer or encumber the property or to revoke the TOD deed.

This draft follows from the meeting of the drafting committee in December 2008. The draft is divided into four articles. Article 1 contains general provisions. Article 2 authorizes transfer on death deeds and addresses the formal and substantive issues concerning such deeds. Article 3 contains optional statutory forms. Article 4 contains miscellaneous provisions.

[ARTICLE] 1

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SECTION 101. SHORT TITLE. This [act] may be cited as the Uniform Real Property Transfer on Death Act.

SECTION 102. DEFINITIONS. In this [act]:

(1) “Beneficiary” means a person that receives property under a transfer on death deed.

(2) “Designated beneficiary” means a person designated to receive property in a transfer on death deed.

(3) “Joint owner” means an individual who owns property concurrently with one or more other individuals with a right of survivorship. The term includes a joint tenant[,][ and] [an owner of community property with a right of survivorship[,][ and a tenant by the entirety]. The term does not include a tenant in common [or an owner of community property without a right of survivorship].

(4) “Person” means an individual, corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, public corporation, government or governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, or any other legal or commercial entity.

(5) “Property” means an interest in real property that is transferable on the death of the owner.

(6) “Transfer on death deed” means a deed authorized under this [act].

(7) “Transferor” means an individual who executes and acknowledges a recorded transfer on death deed.

Comment

Paragraph (1) defines a beneficiary as a person that receives property under a transfer on death deed. This links the definition of “beneficiary” to the definition of a “person.” A beneficiary can be any person, including a revocable trust.

Paragraph (2) defines a designated beneficiary as a person designated to receive property in a transfer on death deed. This links the definition of a “designated beneficiary” to the definition of a “person.” A designated beneficiary can be any person, including a revocable trust.

The distinction between a “beneficiary” and a “designated beneficiary” is easily illustrated. Section 209 provides that, on the transferor’s death, the property that is the subject of a transfer on death deed is transferred to the designated beneficiaries who survive the transferor. If X and Y are the designated beneficiaries but only Y survives the transferor, then Y is a beneficiary and X is not. A further illustration comes into play if Section 209 is made subject to the state’s antilapse statute. If X fails to survive the transferor but has a descendant, Z, who survives the transferor, the antilapse statute creates a substitute gift in favor of Z. The designated beneficiaries are X and Y, but the beneficiaries are Y and Z.

Paragraph (3) provides a definition of a “joint owner” as an individual who owns property with one or more other individuals with a right of survivorship. The term is used in Sections 207 and 209.

Paragraph (4) is the standard Uniform Law Commission definition of a “person.”

The effect of Paragraph (5) is that the act applies to all interests in real property that are transferable at the death of the owner.

Paragraph (6) provides that a “transfer on death deed” is a deed authorized under this act. In some states with existing transfer on death deed legislation, the legislation has instead used the term “beneficiary deed.” The term “transfer on death deed” is preferred, to be consistent with the transfer on death registration of securities. See Article 6, Part 3, of the Uniform Probate Code, containing the Uniform TOD Security Registration Act.

Paragraph (7) limits the definition of a “transferor” to an individual. The term “transferor” does not include a corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, public corporation, government or governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, or any legal or commercial entity other than an individual. The term also does not include an agent. The power of an agent to create or revoke a transfer on death deed is determined by other law, such as the Uniform Power of Attorney Act, as indicated in the Comments to Sections 205 and 207.

SECTION 103. APPLICABILITY. This [act] applies to a transfer on death deed executed before, on, or after [the effective date of this [act]] by a transferor dying on or after [the effective date of this [act]].
This section provides that the act applies to a transfer on death deed executed before, on, or after the effective date of the act by a transferor dying on or after the effective date of the act. This section is consistent with the Uniform Probate Code’s provisions governing transfer on death registration of securities. Those provisions “appl[y] to registrations of securities in beneficiary form made before or after [effective date], by decedents dying on or after [effective date].” Uniform Probate Code §6-311.

SECTION 104. NONEXCLUSIVITY. This [act] does not affect any method of transferring property otherwise permitted under the law of this state.

Comment

This section provides that the act is nonexclusive. The act does not affect any method of transferring property otherwise permitted under state law.

One such method is the present transfer of a springing executory interest. Consider the following examples:

Example 1. A conveys Blackacre “to B, to vest in possession at my death.” By this conveyance, A has made a present transfer of a future interest (a springing executory interest) to B. The transfer is irrevocable. The future interest will ripen into possession at A’s death, even if B fails to survive A.

Example 2. A executes, acknowledges, and records a transfer on death deed for Blackacre, naming B as the designated beneficiary. During A’s lifetime, no interest passes to B, and A may revoke the deed. If unrevoked, the deed will transfer possession to B at A’s death only if B survives A.

Note that these two methods of transfer have different effects and are governed by different rules.
TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED

SECTION 201. TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED AUTHORIZED. An individual may transfer property to one or more beneficiaries effective at the transferor’s death by a transfer on death deed.

Comment

This section authorizes a transfer on death deed and makes it clear that the transfer is not an inter vivos transfer. The transfer occurs at the transferor’s death.

The transferor is an individual, but the singular includes the plural. Multiple individuals can readily act together to transfer property by a transfer on death deed, as in the common case of a husband and wife who own the property as joint tenants or as tenants by the entirety.

The transferor may select any form of ownership, concurrent or successive, absolute or conditional, contingent or vested, valid under state law. Among many other things, this permits the transferor to designate one or more primary beneficiaries and one or more alternate beneficiaries to take in the event the primary beneficiaries fail to survive the transferor. This freedom to specify the form of the transferee’s interest comports with the fundamental principle articulated in the Restatement (Third) of Property (Wills and Other Donative Transfers) §10.1 that the donor’s intention should be “given effect to the maximum extent allowed by law.” As the Restatement explains in Comment c to §10.1, “American law curtails freedom of disposition only to the extent that the donor attempts to make a disposition or achieve a purpose that is prohibited or restricted by an overriding rule of law.”

Notwithstanding this freedom of disposition, transferors are encouraged as a practical matter to avoid formulating dispositions that would complicate title. Dispositions containing conditions or class gifts, for example, may require a court proceeding to sort out the beneficiaries’ interests. Transferors are encouraged to use straightforward dispositions (e.g., to designated beneficiaries who are identified by name) that facilitate the smooth and uncomplicated transfer of title.

SECTION 202. TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED REVOCABLE. A transfer on death deed is revocable even if the deed or a separate instrument contains a contrary provision.

Comment

A fundamental feature of a transfer on death deed is that the transferor retains the power to revoke the deed. Section 202 is framed as a mandatory rule in order to protect uninformed grantors.
If the transferor promises to make the deed irrevocable or not to revoke the deed, the promisee may have a remedy under other law if the promise is broken. The deed remains revocable despite the promise.

SECTION 203. TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED NONTESTAMENTARY. A transfer on death deed is nontestamentary.

Comment

This section is consistent with Uniform Probate Code §6-101(a), which provides: “A provision for a nonprobate transfer on death in an insurance policy, contract of employment, bond, mortgage, promissory note, certificated or uncertificated security, account agreement, custodial agreement, deposit agreement, compensation plan, pension plan, individual retirement plan, employee benefit plan, trust, conveyance, deed of gift, marital property agreement, or other written instrument of a similar nature is nontestamentary.”

As the Comment to Uniform Probate Code §6-101 explains, because the mode of transfer is declared to be nontestamentary, the instrument of transfer is not a will and does not have to be executed in compliance with the formalities for wills, nor does the instrument need to be probated.

Whether a document that is ineffective as a transfer on death deed (e.g., because it has not been recorded before the transferor’s death) should be given effect as a testamentary instrument will depend on the applicable facts and on the wills law of the jurisdiction. Section 2-503 of the Uniform Probate Code provides in pertinent part: “Although a document ... was not executed in compliance with Section 2-502, the document ... is treated as if it had been executed in compliance with that section if the proponent of the document ... establishes by clear and convincing evidence that the decedent intended the document ... to constitute ... (iii) an addition to or alteration of the [decedent’s] will ....”

SECTION 204. CAPACITY OF TRANSFEROR. The capacity required to make or revoke a transfer on death deed is the same as the capacity required to make a will.

Comment

This section is consistent with the Restatement (Third) of Property (Wills and Other Donative Transfers) §8.1(b), which applies the standard of testamentary capacity, and not the standard of capacity for inter vivos gifts, to revocable will substitutes: “If the donative transfer is in the form of a will, a revocable will substitute, or a revocable gift, the testator or donor must be capable of knowing and understanding in a general way the nature and extent of his or her property, the natural objects of his or her bounty, and the disposition that he or she is making of that property, and must also be capable of relating these elements to one another and forming an orderly desire regarding the disposition of the property.” This section is also consistent with Uniform Trust Code §601: “The capacity required to create, amend, revoke, or add property to a revocable trust, or to direct the actions of the trustee of a revocable trust, is the same as that required to make a will.”

A transfer on death deed is not affected if the transferor subsequently loses capacity. On the ability of an agent under a power of attorney to make or revoke a transfer on death deed, see the Comments to Sections 205 and 207.

SECTION 205. REQUIREMENTS. A transfer on death deed must:

(1) contain the essential elements and formalities of a properly recordable inter vivos deed, except as otherwise provided in paragraph (2);

(2) state that the transfer to the designated beneficiary is to occur at the transferor’s death;

(3) be recorded before the transferor’s death in the public records in [the office of the county recorder of deeds] of the [county] where the property is located.

Comment

Paragraph (1) requires a transfer on death deed to contain the same essential elements and formalities, other than a present intention to convey, as are required for a properly recordable inter vivos deed under state law. In all states, this includes the requirement that the deed be acknowledged by the transferor before a notary public or other individual authorized by law to take acknowledgments. In the context of transfer on death deeds, the requirement of acknowledgment fulfills at least four functions. First, it cautions a transferor that he or she is performing an act with legal consequences. Such caution is important where, as here, the transferor does not experience the wrench of delivery because the transfer occurs at death.
Second, acknowledgment helps to prevent fraud. Third, acknowledgment facilitates the recording of the deed. Fourth, acknowledgment enables the rule in Section 207 that a later acknowledged deed prevails over an earlier acknowledged deed.

Paragraph (2) emphasizes an important distinction between an inter vivos deed and a transfer on death deed. An inter vivos deed evidences an intention to transfer, at the time of the conveyance, an interest in property, either a present interest or a future interest. In contrast, a transfer on death deed evidences an intention that the transfer occur at the transferor’s death.
Under no circumstances should a transfer on death deed be given effect as an inter vivos deed; to do so would violate the transferor’s intention that the transfer occur at the transferor’s death.

Paragraph (3) requires a transfer on death deed to be recorded before the transferor’s death in the county (or other appropriate administrative division of a state, such as a parish) where the land is located. If the property described in the deed is in more than one county, the deed is effective only with respect to the property in the county or counties where the deed is recorded. The requirement of recordation before death helps to prevent fraud by ensuring that all steps necessary to the effective transfer on death deed be completed during the transferor’s lifetime. The requirement of recordation before death also enables all parties to rely on the recording system. For these reasons, all states that have enacted transfer on death deed statutes require the deed to be recorded before the transferor’s death.

The act does not define, but instead relies on other law to determine, the authority of an agent. An individual’s agent may execute a transfer on death deed on the individual’s behalf to the extent permitted by other law, such as the Uniform Power of Attorney Act.

SECTION 206. NOTICE, DELIVERY, ACCEPTANCE, CONSIDERATION NOT REQUIRED. A transfer on death deed is effective without:

(1) notice or delivery to or acceptance by the designated beneficiary during the transferor’s lifetime; or

(2) consideration.

Comment

This section makes it clear that a transfer on death deed is effective without notice or delivery to or acceptance by the beneficiary during the transferor’s lifetime (Paragraph (1)) and without consideration (Paragraph (2)).

Paragraph (1) is consistent with the fundamental distinction between a transfer on death deed and an inter vivos deed. Under the former, but not under the latter, the transfer occurs at the transferor’s death. Therefore, there is no requirement of notice, delivery or acceptance during the transferor’s lifetime. This does not mean that the beneficiary is required to accept the property. The beneficiary may disclaim the property as explained in Section 210 and the accompanying Comment.

Paragraph (2) is consistent with the law of real property transfers. A deed need not be supported by consideration.

SECTION 207. REVOCATION BY INSTRUMENT AUTHORIZED; REVOCATION BY ACT NOT PERMITTED.

(a) Subject to subsection (b), the only instrument that revokes a recorded transfer on death deed, or any part of it, is an instrument that is acknowledged by the transferor after the acknowledgment of the deed and recorded before the transferor’s death in the public records in [the office of the county recorder of deeds] of the [county] where the property is located and is:
(1) a transfer on death deed that revokes the deed or part, expressly or by inconsistency;

(2) an instrument of revocation that expressly revokes the deed or part; or

(3) an inter vivos deed that expressly revokes the transfer on death deed or part.

(b) If a transfer on death deed is made by more than one transferor:

(1) revocation by a transferor does not affect the deed as to the interest of another transferor; and

(2) a deed of joint owners is revoked only if it is revoked by all of the living joint owners.

(c) After a transfer on death deed has been recorded, it may not be revoked by a physical act performed on the deed.

Comment

Subsection (a) provides the exclusive methods of revoking, in whole or in part, a recorded transfer on death deed by a subsequent instrument. Revocation by an instrument not specified, such as the transferor’s will, is not permitted. This limitation is consistent with the uniform acts governing multiple-party bank accounts. See Uniform Probate Code §6-213(b) (“A right of survivorship arising from the express terms of the account, Section 6-212, or a POD designation, may not be altered by will.”)

A recorded transfer on death deed may be revoked by instrument only by (1) a subsequently acknowledged transfer on death deed, (2) a subsequently acknowledged instrument of revocation, such as the form in Section 302, or (3) a subsequently acknowledged inter vivos deed containing an express revocation clause. Consider the following examples:

Example 1. T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre. Later, T executed, acknowledged and recorded a second transfer on death deed for Blackacre, containing an express revocation clause revoking “all my prior transfer on death deeds concerning this property.” The second deed revoked the first deed. The revocation occurred when the second deed was recorded. (For the result if the second deed had not contained the express revocation clause, see Example 8.)

Example 2. T executed, acknowledged and recorded two transfer on death deeds for Blackacre. Both deeds expressly revoked “all my prior transfer on death deeds concerning this property.” The dates of acknowledgment determine which deed revoked the other. The first deed was acknowledged November 1; the second deed was acknowledged December 15. The second deed is the later acknowledged, so it revoked the first deed. The revocation occurred when the second deed was recorded.

Example 3. T executed and acknowledged a transfer on death deed for Blackacre. T later executed and acknowledged a revocation form. Both instruments were recorded. Because the revocation form was acknowledged later than the deed, the form revoked the deed. The revocation occurred when the form was recorded.

Example 4. T executed and acknowledged a transfer on death deed for Blackacre. T later executed and acknowledged an inter vivos deed conveying Blackacre and expressly revoking the transfer on death deed. Both instruments were recorded. Because the inter vivos deed contained an express revocation provision and was acknowledged later than the transfer on death deed, the inter vivos deed revoked the transfer on death deed. The revocation occurred when the inter vivos deed was recorded. (For the result if the inter vivos deed had not contained an express revocation clause, see Example 6.)

The same rules apply whether the revocation is total or partial. In the previous examples, suppose instead that the initial transfer on death deed provided for the transfer of two parcels, Blackacre and Whiteacre, and that the subsequent instrument revoked the transfer on death deed as to Blackacre. The subsequent instrument revoked the transfer on death deed in part.

If the property described in the original deed is in more than one county, the revocation is effective only with respect to the property in the county or counties where the revoking deed or instrument is recorded.

The question is sometimes raised whether a deed of conveyance to a third party without an express revocation clause operates as a revocation of an earlier transfer on death deed. The answer highlights the important distinction between “revocation” and “ademption by extinction.” Ademption by extinction can have the same practical effect as revocation. However, the doctrines are different. Revocation means that the transfer on death deed is rendered void. The revocation occurs when the revoking deed or instrument is recorded. Ademption by extinction means that the transfer cannot occur because the property to be transferred is not owned by the transferor at death. The ademption occurs at the transferor’s death. Consider the following examples:

Example 5. T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre, naming X as the designated beneficiary. Later, T executed, acknowledged and recorded a revocation form for Blackacre. When the revocation form was recorded, the transfer on death deed was revoked.

Example 6. T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X as the designated beneficiary. Later, T conveyed Blackacre to Y. Later, T died. The deed conveying Blackacre to Y did not revoke the transfer on death deed. However, at T’s death, Blackacre was not owned by T. Therefore, the attempted transfer on death of Blackacre from T to X was adeemed by extinction. Y is the owner of Blackacre.

Example 7. T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X as the designated beneficiary. Later, T conveyed Blackacre to Y. Later, Y conveyed Blackacre back to T. Later, T died, owning Blackacre. There is no revocation or ademption. At T’s death, the transfer on death deed is effective to transfer Blackacre to X.

The inter vivos conveyance from T to Y had the same practical effect as a revocation in Example 6, but not in Example 7.

Subsection (a)(1) speaks of revocation “expressly or by inconsistency.” This provision references the well-established law of revocation by inconsistency of wills. Consider the following examples:

Example 8. T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X as the designated beneficiary. Later, T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for the same property, Blackacre, containing no express revocation of the earlier deed but naming Y as the designated beneficiary. Later, T died. The recording of the deed in favor of Y revoked the deed in favor of X by inconsistency. At T’s death, Y is the owner of Blackacre.

Example 9. T, the owner of Blackacre in fee simple absolute, executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X as the designated beneficiary. Later, T executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed containing no express revocation of the earlier deed but naming Y as the designated beneficiary of a life estate (or a mineral interest) in Blackacre. Later, T died. The recording of the deed in favor of Y partially revoked the deed in favor of X by inconsistency. At T’s death, Y is the owner of a life estate (or a mineral interest) in Blackacre, and X is the owner of the remainder.

Subsection (b) supplies rules governing revocation in the event of multiple owners. Subsection (b)(1) provides that revocation by a transferor does not affect a transfer on death deed as to the interest of another transferor. Subsection (b)(2) provides that a transfer on death deed of joint owners is revoked only if it is revoked by all of the living joint owners. This rule is consistent with Uniform Probate Code §6-306, which provides in pertinent part: “A registration of a security in beneficiary form may be canceled or changed at any time by the sole owner or all then surviving owners without the consent of the beneficiary.”

Subsection (c) provides that a recorded transfer on death deed may not be revoked by a physical act performed on the deed. A physical act includes burning, tearing, canceling, obliterating, or destroying the deed or any part of it.

This act does not define, but instead looks to other law to determine, the authority of an agent. An individual’s agent may revoke a transfer on death deed on the individual’s behalf to the extent permitted by other law, such as the Uniform Power of Attorney Act.

SECTION 208. EFFECT OF TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED DURING TRANSFEROR’S LIFETIME. During the transferor’s lifetime, a transfer on death deed does not:
(1) affect the interests or rights of the transferor or any other owners, including the right to transfer or encumber the property;
(2) affect the interests or rights of transferees, whether or not they have actual or constructive notice of the deed;
(3) affect the interests or rights of the transferor’s pre-existing or future creditors, secured or unsecured, whether or not they have actual or constructive notice of the deed;
(4) affect the transferor’s or designated beneficiary’s eligibility for any form of public assistance;
(5) create a legal or equitable interest in favor of the designated beneficiary; or
(6) subject the property to claims or process of the designated beneficiary’s creditors.

Comment

The fundamental feature of a transfer on death deed is that it does not operate until the transferor’s death. The transfer occurs at the transferor’s death, not before.

Paragraph (1): A transfer on death deed, during the transferor’s lifetime, does not affect the interests or rights of the transferor or any other owners. The deed does not affect the transferor’s right to transfer or encumber the property, nor does it sever a joint tenancy, nor should it trigger a due-on-sale clause in the transferor’s mortgage.

Paragraph (2): A transfer on death deed does not affect transferees, whether or not they have notice of the deed. Like a will, the transfer on death deed is ambulatory. It has no effect on inter vivos transfers.

Paragraph (3): A transfer on death deed, during the transferor’s lifetime, does not affect pre-existing or future creditors, secured or unsecured, whether or not they have an interest in the property or notice of the deed.

Paragraph (4): A transfer on death deed, during the transferor’s lifetime, does not affect the transferor’s or designated beneficiary’s eligibility for any form of public assistance, including Medicaid. On this point, the drafting committee specifically disapproves of the Paragraph (5): During the transferor’s lifetime, a transfer on death deed does not create a legal or equitable interest in the designated beneficiary. The beneficiary does not have an interest that can be assigned or encumbered. Note, however, that this rule would not preclude the doctrine of after-acquired title. A warranty deed from a designated beneficiary to a third party would operate to pass the beneficiary’s title to the third party after the transferor’s death.

Paragraph (6): A transfer on death deed, during the transferor’s lifetime, does not make the property subject to claims or process of the designated beneficiary’s creditors. The deed has no more effect than a will.

SECTION 209. EFFECT OF TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED AT TRANSFEROR’S DEATH.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in the transfer on death deed, in this section, or in [cite state statutes on antilapse, revocation by divorce or homicide, survival and simultaneous death, and elective share, if applicable to nonprobate transfers], on the death of the transferor, the following rules apply to property that is the subject of an effective transfer on death deed and owned by the transferor at death:

(1) Subject to subsection (3), the interests in the property are transferred to the designated beneficiaries in accordance with the deed.

(2) Concurrent beneficiaries receive equal and undivided interests in the property with no right of survivorship among them.

(3) The interest of a designated beneficiary is contingent on the designated beneficiary surviving the transferor. The interest of a designated beneficiary that fails to survive the transferor lapses.

(4) If the transferor has identified two or more designated beneficiaries to receive concurrent interests in the property, the share of a designated beneficiary that lapses or fails for any reason passes to the other designated beneficiary, or to the other designated beneficiaries in proportion to the interest of each in the remaining part of the property to be held concurrently.

(b) Subject to [cite state recording act], a beneficiary takes the property subject to all conveyances, encumbrances, assignments, contracts, mortgages, liens, and other interests to which the property is subject at the transferor’s death. For purposes of this subsection and [cite state recording act], the recording of the transfer on death deed is deemed to have occurred at the transferor’s death.

(c) If a transferor is a joint owner and is:

(1) survived by one or more other joint owners, the property that is the subject of a transfer on death deed belongs to the surviving joint owner or owners, and the right of survivorship continues among the surviving joint owners;

(2) the last surviving joint owner, the transfer on death deed is effective.

(d) A transfer on death deed transfers property without covenant or warranty of title even if the deed contains a contrary provision.

Legislative Note: States should determine whether their statutes on antilapse, revocation by divorce or homicide, survival and simultaneous death, and the elective share of the surviving spouse apply to nonprobate instruments such as transfer on death deeds. On the desirability of extending these probate rules to nonprobate transfers, see the Legislative Note and Comment to Section 403.

Comment

Subsection (a) states four default rules, except as otherwise provided by the transfer on death deed, by this section, or by other provisions of state law governing nonprobate transfers.
On this last, and the desirability of extending the probate rules governing antilapse, revocation on divorce or homicide, survival and simultaneous death, and the elective share of the surviving spouse to nonprobate instruments such as transfer on death deeds, see the Comment to Section 403.

The four default rules established by subsection (a) are these. First, the property that is the subject of an effective transfer on death deed and owned by the transferor at death is transferred at the transferor’s death to the designated beneficiaries as provided in the deed. The rule implements the transferor’s intention as described in the deed. Consider the following example:

Example 1. A executes, acknowledges and records a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X as the primary beneficiary and Y as the alternate beneficiary if X fails to survive A.
Both X and Y survive A. Blackacre is transferred to X at A’s death in accordance with the provisions of the deed.

This default rule implements the fundamental principle that the provisions of the deed control the disposition of the property, unless otherwise provided by state law.

The drafting committee approves of the result in In re Estate of Roloff, 143 P.3d 406 (Kan. Ct. App. 2006) (holding that crops should be transferred with the land under a transfer on death deed because this result would be reached on the same facts with any other deed).

The bracketed language at the beginning of subsection (a) enables a state to make the default rules subject to other statutes, such as an antilapse statute or a statute providing for revocation on divorce. Consider the following examples:

Example 2. A executes, acknowledges and records a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X as the primary beneficiary and Y as the alternate beneficiary if X fails to survive A. In fact, X fails to survive A, who is survived by Y and by X’s child, Z. Assume that the state’s antilapse statute applies to transfer on death deeds and creates a substitute gift in Z that supersedes the alternative designation in favor of Y. (For such a statute, see Uniform Probate Code §2-706.) Blackacre is transferred to Z at A’s death in accordance with the provisions of the deed as modified by the antilapse statute.

Example 3. A executes, acknowledges and records a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming her spouse, X, as the primary beneficiary and Y as the alternate beneficiary if X fails to survive A. Later, A and X divorce. Assume that state’s statute on revocation by divorce applies to transfer on death deeds and revokes the designation in favor of X, with the effect that the provisions of the transfer on death deed are given effect as if X had disclaimed. (For such a statute, see Uniform Probate Code §2-804.) Assume further that the effect of the putative disclaimer is that X is treated as having failed to survive A. (See the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act §6(a)(3)(B).) Blackacre is transferred to Y at A’s death in accordance with the provisions of the deed as modified by the revocation on divorce and disclaimer statutes.

Note that the property must be owned by the transferor at death. Property no longer owned by the transferor at death cannot be transferred by a transfer on death deed, just as it cannot be transferred by a will. This is the principle of ademption by extinction, discussed in the Comment to Section 207.

In almost every instance, the transferor will own the property not only at death but also when the transfer on death deed is executed, but the latter is not imperative. Consider the following example. H and W, a married couple, held Blackacre as tenants by the entirety. H executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre in favor of X. W later died, at which point H owned Blackacre in fee simple absolute. Under the law of some states, there may be a question whether the transfer on death deed is effective, given that H executed it when Blackacre was owned, not by H and W, but by the marital entity. The correct answer is that the transfer on death deed is effective at H’s death because Blackacre is owned by H at H’s death. See, e.g., Mitchell v. Wilmington Trust Co., 449 A.2d 1055 (Del. Ch. 1982) (mortgage granted by one tenant by the entirety is not void upon execution but remains inchoate during the lives of both spouses, and becomes a valid lien if the spouse who executed the mortgage survives the other spouse or if the spouses get divorced).

The second default rule established by subsection (a) is that concurrent beneficiaries receive equal and undivided interests with no right of survivorship among them. This default rule is consistent with the general presumption in favor of tenancy in common. See Powell on Real Property §51.02. The rule is also consistent with Uniform Probate Code §6-212 governing multiple-party accounts and §6-307 governing the transfer on death registration of securities.

The third default rule established by subsection (a) is that the interest of a designated beneficiary is contingent on surviving the transferor. This default rule treats wills and will substitutes alike. The interest of a designated beneficiary who fails to survive the transferor lapses. On the desirability of extending statutory antilapse protection to will substitutes such as transfer on death deeds, see the Comment to Section 403.

The fourth and last default rule established by subsection (a) is that, in the event of the lapse or failure of an interest to be held concurrently, the share that lapses or fails passes proportionately to the surviving concurrent beneficiaries. Consider the following example:

Example 4. A executed, acknowledged and recorded a transfer on death deed for Blackacre naming X, Y, and Z as the designated beneficiaries. X and Y survived A, but Z failed to survive A. The transfer on death deed is effective and transfers Blackacre to X and Y. This default rule is consistent with the transferor’s probable intention in the absence of an antilapse statute and also with Uniform Probate Code §2-604(b) on the lapse of a residuary devise. On the desirability of extending statutory antilapse protection to will substitutes such as transfer on death deeds, see the Comment to Section 403.

Subsection (b) concerns the effect of transactions during the transferor’s lifetime. The subsection states an intermediate rule between two extremes. One extreme would provide that transactions during the transferor’s lifetime affect the beneficiary only if the transactions are recorded before the transferor’s death. This would unfairly disadvantage the transferor’s creditors and transferees. The other extreme would provide that transactions during the transferor’s lifetime always supersede the beneficiary’s interest, even if the recording act would provide otherwise. Between these two positions is the rule of subsection (b). The subsection provides, as a general rule, that the beneficiary’s interest is subject to all conveyances, encumbrances, assignments, contracts, mortgages, liens, and other interests to which the property is subject at the transferor’s death. However, there is an exception to this general rule when the state recording act so provides. The state recording act will so provide when two conditions are met: (1) the inter vivos conveyance or encumbrance is unrecorded throughout the transferor’s lifetime (the legal fiction in this subsection protects persons who transact with the transferor and record any time before the transferor’s death); and (2) the beneficiary is protected by the recording act. These two conditions will both be met only in rare instances. Most beneficiaries of transfer on death deeds are gratuitious, whereas state recording acts protect only purchasers for value. See Powell on Real Property §82.02.

Subsection (c) provides that the survivorship right of a joint owner takes precedence over the transfer on death deed. This rule is consistent with the law of joint tenancy and wills: the right of survivorship takes precedence over a provision in a joint tenant’s will.

Subsection (d) states the mandatory rule that a transfer on death deed transfers the property without covenant or warranty of title. The rule is mandatory for two reasons: first, to prevent mishaps by uninformed grantors; and second, to recognize that a transfer on death deed is a will substitute. The rule of this section is consistent with the longstanding law of wills. As stated by Sir Edward Coke, “an express warranty cannot be created by will.” Coke on Littleton 386a.

SECTION 210. DISCLAIMER. A beneficiary may disclaim all or part of the beneficiary’s interest as provided by [cite state statute or the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act].

Legislative Note: States should check their disclaimer statutes for any necessary amendments. The following are conforming amendments to the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act:

SECTION 12. DELIVERY OR FILING.

(a) In this section, “beneficiary designation” means an instrument, other than an instrument creating a trust, naming the beneficiary of:

(1) an annuity or insurance policy;
(2) an account with a designation for payment on death;
(3) a security registered in beneficiary form;
(4) a pension, profit-sharing, retirement, or other employment-related benefit plan; or
(5) any other nonprobate transfer at death.

(b) Subject to subsections (c) through (l), delivery of a disclaimer may be effected by personal delivery, first-class mail, or any other method likely to result in its receipt.

(c) In the case of an interest created under the law of intestate succession or an interest created by will, other than an interest in a testamentary trust:

(1) a disclaimer must be delivered to the personal representative of the decedent’s estate; or
(2) if no personal representative is then serving, it must be filed with a court having jurisdiction to appoint the personal representative.

(d) In the case of an interest in a testamentary trust:

(1) a disclaimer must be delivered to the trustee then serving, or if no trustee is then serving, to the personal representative of the decedent’s estate; or
(2) if no personal representative is then serving, it must be filed with a court having jurisdiction to enforce the trust.

(e) In the case of an interest in an inter vivos trust:

(1) a disclaimer must be delivered to the trustee then serving;
(2) if no trustee is then serving, it must be filed with a court having jurisdiction to enforce the trust; or
(3) if the disclaimer is made before the time the instrument creating the trust becomes irrevocable, it must be delivered to the settlor of a revocable trust or the transferor of the interest.

(f) In the case of an interest created by a beneficiary designation made before the time the designation becomes irrevocable, the disclaimer must be delivered to the person making the beneficiary designation.
(g) In the case of an interest created by a beneficiary designation made after the time the designation becomes irrevocable:

(1) a disclaimer of an interest in personal property must be delivered to the person obligated to distribute the interest; and

(2) a disclaimer of an interest in real property must be recorded in [the office of the county recorder of deeds] of the [county] where the real property that is the subject of the disclaimer is located.

(h) In the case of a disclaimer by a surviving holder of jointly held property, the disclaimer must be delivered to the person to whom the disclaimed interest passes.

(i) In the case of a disclaimer by an object or taker in default of exercise of a power of appointment at any time after the power was created:

(1) the disclaimer must be delivered to the holder of the power or to the fiduciary acting under the instrument that created the power; or

(2) if no fiduciary is then serving, it must be filed with a court having authority to appoint the fiduciary.

(j) In the case of a disclaimer by an appointee of a nonfiduciary power of appointment:

(1) the disclaimer must be delivered to the holder, the personal representative of the holder's estate or to the fiduciary under the instrument that created the power; or

(2) if no fiduciary is then serving, it must be filed with a court having authority to appoint the fiduciary.

(k) In the case of a disclaimer by a fiduciary of a power over a trust or estate, the disclaimer must be delivered as provided in subsection (c), (d), or (e), as if the power disclaimed were an interest in property.

(l) In the case of a disclaimer of a power by an agent, the disclaimer must be delivered to the principal or the principal's representative.

Comment

The rules set forth in Section 12 are designed so that anyone who has the duty to distribute the disclaimed interest will be notified to provide notice of the disclaimer. For example, a disclaimer of an interest in a decedent's estate must be delivered to the personal representative of the estate. A disclaimer is required to be filed in court only when there is no one person or entity to whom delivery can be made in very limited circumstances.

SECTION 15. RECORDING OF DISCLAIMER. If an instrument transferring an interest in or power over property subject to a disclaimer is required or permitted by law to be filed, recorded, or registered, the disclaimer may be so filed, recorded, or registered. Except as otherwise provided in Section 12(g)(2), failure to file, record, or register the disclaimer does not affect its validity as between the disclaimant and persons to whom the property interest or power passes by reason of the disclaimer.

Comment
This section permits the recordation of a disclaimer of an interest in property ownership of or title to which is the subject of a recording system. This section expands on the corresponding provision of previous Uniform Acts which only referred to permissive recording of a disclaimer of an interest in real property. While local practice may vary, disclaimants should realize that in order to establish the chain of title to real property, and to ward off creditors and bona fide purchasers, the disclaimer may have to be recorded. This section does not change the law of the state governing notice. The reference to Section 12(g)(2) concerns the disclaimer of an interest in real property created by a “beneficiary designation” as that term is defined in Section 12(a). Such a disclaimer must be recorded.

Comment

A beneficiary of a transfer on death deed may disclaim the property interest the deed attempts to transfer. While this section relies on other law, such as the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act, to govern the disclaimer, two general principles should be noted.

First, there is no need under the law of disclaimers to execute a disclaimer in advance. During the transferor’s lifetime, a designated beneficiary has no interest in the property. See Section 208. Nothing passes to the designated beneficiary while the transferor is alive, hence there is no need to execute a disclaimer during that time.

Second, an effective disclaimer executed after the testator’s death “relates back” to the moment of the attempted transfer, here the death of the transferor. Because the disclaimer “relates back,” the beneficiary is regarded as never having had an interest in the disclaimed property. The Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Act reaches this result, without using the language of relation back, in §6(b)(1): “The disclaimer takes effect as of the time the instrument creating the interest becomes irrevocable ....” As the Comment to §6 explains, “This Act continues the effect of the relation back doctrine, not by using the specific words, but by directly stating what the relation back doctrine has been interpreted to mean.”

SECTION 211. LIABILITY FOR CREDITOR CLAIMS AND STATUTORY ALLOWANCES.

Alternative A

A beneficiary of a transfer on death deed is liable for allowed claims against the transferor’s probate estate and statutory allowances to a surviving spouse and children to the extent provided in [cite state statute or Section 6-102 of the Uniform Probate Code].

Alternative B

(1) Property transferred by a transfer on death deed is liable to the transferor’s estate for properly allowed claims against the estate and statutory allowances to a surviving spouse and children to the extent the estate is inadequate to satisfy those claims and allowances.

(2) If more than one property is transferred by one or more transfer on death deeds, the liability under subsection (1) is apportioned among the properties in proportion to their net values at the transferor’s death.

(3) A proceeding to enforce the liability under this section must be commenced within [eighteen months] after the transferor’s death.

End of Alternatives

Legislative Note: Alternative A is for a state with an existing statute governing creditors’ rights in nonprobate transfers, such as Uniform Probate Code §6-102. States are encouraged to enact such statutes, thereby treating nonprobate transfers comprehensively. Alternative B is a second-best approach, supplying creditor protection but governing only transfer on death deeds and not other nonprobate mechanisms.

Comment

Alternative A defers to other law, such as Uniform Probate Code §6-102, to establish the liability of a beneficiary of a transfer on death deed for creditor claims and statutory allowances.

Uniform Probate Code §6-102 was added in 1998 to establish the principle that recipients of nonprobate transfers can be required to contribute to pay allowed claims and statutory allowances to the extent the probate estate is insufficient. The fundamental rule of liability is contained in §6-102(b): “Except as otherwise provided by statute, a transferee of a nonprobate transfer is subject to liability to any probate estate of the decedent for allowed claims against the decedent’s probate estate and statutory allowances to the decedent’s spouse and children to the extent the estate is insufficient to satisfy those claims and allowances. The liability of a nonprobate transferee may not exceed the value of nonprobate transfers received or controlled by that transferee.” The other provisions of UPC §6-102 implement this liability rule.

For states not favoring the comprehensive approach of UPC §6-102(b) or the equivalent, Alternative B provides an in rem liability rule applying to transfer on death deeds. The property transferred under a transfer on death deed is liable to the transferor’s probate estate for properly allowed claims and statutory allowances to the extent the estate is insufficient.

One of the functions of probate is creditor protection. There is a credible argument that the growing use of nonprobate instruments has disadvantaged creditors by enabling decedents to transfer property outside of probate. It is important to bear in mind, however, that Uniform Probate Code §6-102, referenced in Alternative A, attempts to provide comprehensive creditor protection. In addition, this Act in Alternative B provides more creditor protection than is typically available. For many transferors, the transfer on death deed will be used in lieu of joint tenancy with right of survivorship. Under the usual law of joint tenancy, the unsecured creditors of a deceased joint tenant have no recourse against the property or against the other joint tenant.
Instead, the property passes automatically to the survivor, free of the decedent’s debts. See Comment 5 to UPC §6-102. If the debts cannot be paid from the probate estate, the creditor is out of luck. Under Alternative B, in contrast, the property transferred under a transfer on death deed is liable to the probate estate for properly allowed claims and statutory allowances to the extent the estate is insufficient.
OPTIONAL FORMS

Legislative Note: This article is bracketed for states wishing to provide optional statutory forms. An enacting jurisdiction should review its statutory requirements for deeds and for acknowledgments and amend the statutory forms provided in Sections 301 and 302 where necessary for conformity with those requirements.

SECTION 301. OPTIONAL FORM OF TRANSFER ON DEATH DEED. The following form may, but need not, be used to create a transfer on death deed. The other sections of this [act] govern the effect of this or any other instrument used to create a transfer on death deed:

COMMON QUESTIONS ABOUT THE USE OF THIS FORM
WHAT DOES THE TRANSFER ON DEATH (TOD) DEED DO? When you die, this deed transfers the described property, subject to any debts or liens or mortgages (or other encumbrances) you have put on the property during your lifetime. Probate is not required. The TOD deed has no effect until you die. You can revoke it at any time. You are also free to transfer the property to someone else during your lifetime. If you do not own any interest in the property when you die, this deed will have no effect.

HOW DO I MAKE A TOD DEED? Complete this form. Have it acknowledged before a notary public or other individual authorized by law to take acknowledgments. Record the form in each [county] where any part of the property is located. The form must be acknowledged and recorded before your death or it has no effect.

HOW DO I FIND THE “LEGAL DESCRIPTION” OF THE PROPERTY? This information may be on the deed you received when you became an owner of the property. This information may also be available in [the office of the county recorder of deeds] for the [county] where the property is located. If you are not absolutely sure, consult a lawyer.

IS THE “LEGAL DESCRIPTION” NECESSARY? Yes.

CAN I CHANGE MY MIND BEFORE I RECORD THE TOD DEED? Yes. If you have not yet recorded the deed and want to change your mind, simply tear up the deed.

HOW DO I “RECORD” THE TOD DEED? Take the completed and acknowledged form to [the office of the county recorder of deeds] of the [county] where the property is located. Follow the instructions given by the [county recorder] to make the form part of the official property records. If the property is in more than one [county], you must record the deed in each [county].

CAN I LATER REVOKE THE TOD DEED IF I CHANGE MY MIND? Yes. The TOD deed is revocable. No one, including the beneficiaries, can prevent you from revoking the deed.

HOW DO I REVOKE THE TOD DEED? There are three ways to revoke a recorded TOD deed:
(1) Complete and acknowledge a revocation form, and record it in each [county] where the property is located. (2) Complete and acknowledge a new TOD deed that disposes of the same property, and record it in each [county] where the property is located. (3) Transfer the property to someone else during your lifetime by a deed that expressly revokes the TOD deed.

I AM BEING PRESSURED TO COMPLETE THIS FORM. WHAT SHOULD I DO? Do not complete this form under pressure. Seek help from a trusted family member, a friend, or a lawyer.

DO I NEED TO TELL THE BENEFICIARIES ABOUT THE TOD DEED? No, but it is recommended. Secrecy can cause later complications and might make it easier for others to commit fraud.

I HAVE OTHER QUESTIONS ABOUT THIS FORM. WHAT SHOULD I DO? This form is designed to fit some but not all situations. If you have other questions, you are encouraged to consult a lawyer.

Comment

The form in this section is optional. The section is based on Section 4 of the Uniform Health-Care Decisions Act.

Ten of the twelve states with transfer on death deed statutes provide a statutory form. See Minn. Stat. §507.071(24); Mont. Stat. §72-6-121(13); Nev. Stat. §111.109(6); N.M. Stat. §45-6-401(C); Ohio Code §5302.22(A); Okla. H.B. 2639 §3.

The transfer on death deed is likely to be used by consumers for whom the preparation of a tailored inter vivos revocable trust is too costly. The form in this section is designed to be understandable and consumer-friendly.

consumers, see the Illinois statutory forms for powers of attorney. 755 Ill. Comp. Stat. 45/3-3 (power of attorney for property); 755 Ill. Comp. Stat. 45/4-10 (power of attorney for health care).

SECTION 302. OPTIONAL FORM OF REVOCATION. The following form may, but need not, be used to create an instrument of revocation under this [act]. The other sections of this [act] govern the effect of this or any other instrument used to revoke a transfer on death
NOTICE TO OWNER

This revocation must be recorded before you die or it will not be effective. This revocation is effective only as to the interests in the property of owners who sign this revocation.

Comment

The form in this section is optional. The section is based on Section 4 of the Uniform Health-Care Decisions Act.
Six of the twelve states with transfer on death deed statutes provide a statutory form for revocation. See Ariz. Stat. §33-405(L); Ark. Stat. §18-12-608(i), Colo. Stat. §15-15-405; Minn. Stat. §507.071(25); Mont. Stat. §72-6-121(14); Nev. Stat. §111.109(7).

The aim of the form in this section is to be understandable and consumer-friendly.
MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SECTION 401. UNIFORMITY OF APPLICATION AND CONSTRUCTION. In applying and construing this uniform act, consideration must be given to the need to promote uniformity of the law with respect to its subject matter among the states that enact it.

SECTION 402. RELATION TO ELECTRONIC SIGNATURES IN GLOBAL AND NATIONAL COMMERCE ACT. This [act] modifies, limits, and supersedes the federal Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act, 15 U.S.C. Section 7001, et. seq., but does not modify, limit, or supersede Section 101(c) of that act, 15 U.S.C. Section 7001(c), or authorize electronic delivery of any of the notices described in Section 103(b) of that act, 15 U.S.C. Section 7003(b).

SECTION 403. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS. The following acts and parts of acts are hereby amended:

(1) ........................................
(2) .......................................
(3) .......................................

Legislative Note: In light of the growing harmonization of the rules governing probate and nonprobate transfers, states may wish to consider extending to nonprobate mechanisms, such as transfer on death deeds, the probate rules governing antilapse, revocation by divorce, revocation by homicide, survival and simultaneous death, and the elective share of a surviving spouse. See also the Legislative Note to Section 210 on disclaimers.

Comment

One of the significant trends in the law of family property in the twentieth century has been the growing harmonization of the constructional and substantive rules governing wills and will substitutes. Section 7.2 of the Restatement (Third) of Property (Wills and Other Donative Transfers) provides: “Although a will substitute need not be executed in compliance with the statutory formalities required for a will, such an arrangement is, to the extent appropriate, subject to substantive restrictions on testation and to rules of construction and other rules applicable to testamentary dispositions.”
The Uniform Probate Code contains statutory provisions treating wills and will substitutes alike for many purposes, including (1) antilapse; (2) revocation by divorce; (3) revocation by homicide (the “slayer rule”); (4) survival and simultaneous death; and (5) the elective share of a surviving spouse.

In some cases, the harmonization is achieved by applying the relevant rule to any “governing instrument,” which is defined in Uniform Probate Code §1-201(18) as “a deed, will, trust, insurance or annuity policy, account with POD designation, security registered in beneficiary form (TOD), pension, profitsharing, retirement, or similar benefit plan, instrument creating or exercising a power of appointment or a power of attorney, or a dispositive, appointive, or nominative instrument of any similar type.” The Uniform Probate Code’s rules on revocation by divorce, revocation by homicide, and survival and simultaneous death apply to any governing instrument. See Uniform Probate Code §§2-702 (survival and simultaneous death), 2-803 (revocation by homicide), 2-804 (revocation by divorce).

For the elective share, the Uniform Probate Code treats wills and will substitutes alike by defining the decedent’s “augmented estate” to include both probate and nonprobate transfers. See Uniform Probate Code §2-203(a).

For antilapse, the Uniform Probate Code has separate sections treating wills (§2-603) and will substitutes (§§2-706, 2-707), but the latter are modeled on the former.

SECTION 404. REPEALS. The following acts and parts of acts are hereby repealed:

(1) ........................................

(2) .......................................

(3) .......................................

Legislative Note: This section is for states wishing to replace their transfer on death deed statutes with this Act.

SECTION 405. EFFECTIVE DATE. This [act] takes effect .................
